

The leading virtual clinic specializing in perimenopause and menopause care

Why talk about menopause at work?

Menopause and perimenopause symptoms impact your employees' wellbeing—and can derail productivity and quality of life at a critical career stage. Midi can help.

Providing menopause care is an issue of equity. Of women surveyed:

- 99% felt menopause symptoms impacted their careers
- 59% took off time due to symptoms
- 25% considered leaving their jobs

The gap in menopause care creates higher costs for employers. Women untreated for vasomotor symptoms cost $1300 more per capita.

“We can't talk about women's success at work without talking about menopause.

- JOANNA STOBER, MIDI CEO

What is the Midi difference?

Successfully treating people navigating midlife hormonal change requires a holistic and multidisciplinary approach.

- Midi provides expert care with in-depth protocols designed by our nationally recognized clinical leadership team. We employ an experienced team of nurse practitioners supervised by doctors whom we deeply train in menopause care.
- Each patient receives a holistic care plan personalized to them—including cancer survivors post-treatment and women at high risk of cancer. Convenient telemedicine visits minimize the impact to productivity.
- All visits billed to health insurance claims, with no additional fees.

What your employees are going through is real with measurable impacts to both their performance and wellbeing. Midi's expert care ensures that your workforce sails through this important transition.

It's important to choose the right provider
