

Expert cancer care guidance for your employees.

When an employee faces cancer—whether it’s their own diagnosis or a family member’s—their world changes overnight. With a Navvisa oncology nurse at their side, your employee will have a trusted partner providing expert guidance, so they can move forward with confidence.

Our nurses engage with Navvisa members via telehealth to assess needs and resolve issues when they arise. This keeps your employees out of the ER, improves mental wellbeing, and allows them to stay engaged at work for as long as possible.

We get to know your employees

Our certified oncology nurses are matched to members and stay with them throughout their journey.

We tag along to appointments

Our nurses remotely attend doctor visits to ensure that all questions and concerns are addressed.

We're available when needed

No need to wait for appointments to address concerns. We're readily available via messaging or video chat.

We care for the caregivers

We'll reduce the stress that impacts productivity at work and puts the caregiver at risk for serious illness.

Navvisa guidance addresses gaps in cancer care

We make your employees feel valued

With their own personal Oncology Nurse expert to guide them, your employees can feel confident they are receiving the best possible care.

We help lower cost of care

Navvisa intervenes at first signs of need, keeping employees out of the ER and hospital.

We keep employees on the job

We help alleviate treatment side effects and stress, improving your employees' ability to continue working.

We support Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

Our in-depth nursing assessments via telehealth improve outcomes for hard-to-reach populations and those with barriers to care.

We don't overlook family caregivers

We make sure caregivers—who carry a heavy load at great cost to themselves and their employer—get guidance, too.
