How Even helps employees

Instapay

Schedule & earnings

Instant budgeting

Automatic saving

Retention

Because employees highly value Even's core features of Instapay and automatic budgeting, they're less likely to leave a job that offers Even as a benefit.

Productivity and Revenue

Even's tools help employees feel secure and confident about money, so they can focus at work. A less-stressed workforce leads to higher productivity, better customer service, and increased revenue.

Benefits engagement

With over 15% adoption in 6 months among Walmart employees, Even's proven extremely popular with employees. 65% of those who download it become monthly active users.

Implementation and scalability

Even's senior, in-house engineers manage implementation of Even via a simple and non-invasive data transfer system.

Security and privacy

Even's ISO 27001 controls include network segmentation, end-to-end encryption, and role-based access. Even will never sell partner or employee data, or advertise to employees.

Compliance

Even is compliant in all 50 states and FDIC insured.

Instapay helps employees in a pinch

When emergencies and mistakes happen, employees can use Instapay to get some of the pay they've already earned early, with no interest or hidden fees. Frequency and quantity limits make Instapay easy to use responsibly.

Schedule and earnings data helps employees stay organized

Employees can easily reference their upcoming schedule and projected earnings from within the app, broken down by day.

Instant budgeting helps employees plan ahead

Each pay period, Even shows employees how much they need for bills and how much is left for spending. One glance at the app lets them know if they're on track.

Automatic saving helps employees build wealth

Even automatically saves a percentage of each day's pay in a separate account. Employees get the satisfaction of saving, without the temptation to spend.

Easy set-up

Even automatically pulls in all the information it needs from employees' payroll and bank data, making set-up easy.

High-quality support

Even's in-house team of extensively-trained, bilingual advisors provides live, in-app chat support to employees seven days a week.
